A Souvenir of Delightful Journeys

SCENICALLY beautiful is the country traversed by the Salt Lake Route, the Short Line between Salt Lake City, Los Angeles and the Western Sea. Nevada's mountain-circled valleys and picturesque canyons are equalled only by the scenic charms of Southern California. On the following pages are suggestions of what may be seen in the great Orange District and West to the Ocean Resorts.

Arrowhead Mountain

and Hot Springs

ARROWHEAD Mountain is so called from the singular natural symbol on its side, which has been adopted as the trade mark of the Salt Lake Route. This symbol is of unknown origin and covers an area of $7\frac{1}{2}$ acres. It measures 1375 feet long by 449 feet wide. Many Indian legends concerning The Arrowhead have been published by the Salt Lake Route, in a booklet which may be had free of charge from agents or the General Passenger Agent. Arrowhead Hot Springs on the mesa at the foot of the mountain, is a noted resort, and is reached by an electric car ride of six miles from Salt Lake Route Station at San Bernardino.

San Bernardino

The Gate City

SAN BERNARDINO is a charming little city at the base of Arrowhead Mountain, and is the gateway to Southern California, via the Salt Lake Route from the East. It was first settled by the Mormons in the early '50's, although a Franciscan mission was established there in 1810. It is now a city of considerable business importance in manufacturing and shipping, and adorned with beautiful residence streets and parks. On the opposite page is a street scene in San Bernardino.

Population, 18,000.

Riverside
The Mission City

IN the heart of the great orange district, and a thriving commercial and tourist city with many beautiful homes and gardens. Victoria Avenue, pictured on opposite page, is a noted boulevard. Other beautiful drives include the splendid panoramic boulevard which winds around and to the summit of Rubidoux Mountain, orange-bordered Magnolia Avenue and tropically beautiful Palm Drive. Daily excursions from Los Angeles allow several hours for sight-seeing at Riverside. Excursion tickets are on sale at all Stations. Population 18,000

A Wonderful
Scenic Mountain Drive

FOUR miles of splendid automobile and carriage road, blasted out of the solid rock and winding around Rubidoux Mountain to a height of 1300 feet, with beautiful scenic views of mountains and valleys. Such is the famous Huntington Park Drive within the city limits of Riverside. At the top stands the cross pictured on opposite page, and commemorating the blessing of the valley more than a hundred and twenty-five years ago, by Father Junipero Serra, the Franciscan founder of the California Missions.

The Glenwood
Riverside's Mission Inn

A LONG, low, cloistered building of Old Mission type of architecture, The Glenwood is unique among modern hotels. The chime of Mission bells in the stately campanile, the great open patio or court, tree shaded and flower embowered, and "The Monastery," are reminiscent of ancient days. The service and cuisine, however, are of equal quality with metropolitan hotels. In the great collection of interesting objects in the Monastery, are more than 300 ancient bells gathered from all over the world.

Orange Packing

ONE of the most interesting sights to the visitor in California is to be found in the great orange packing houses. At Riverside and several other points visitors are welcome to see the entire process of grading and packing oranges. Special souvenir boxes of fancy fruit may here be purchased, and expressed to any part of the world with the sender's compliments. Excursion tickets are on sale at Los Angeles. Good eight days.

Redlands

Gem of the Valley

NINE miles by electric railway from San Bernardino and equally distant from Colton by steam railway, is this gem of Southern California cities, embowered in orange groves and flower gardens. From Canyon Crest Park on Smiley Heights, are obtained beautiful vistas of valley and mountain. McKinley Drive and Terrace Avenue are noted scenic thoroughfares. Many beautiful homes amid spacious grounds and orange groves may be seen. Population about 12,000

The King of Bridges

SIX miles west of Riverside Station, on the line of the Salt Lake Route, and spanning the Santa Ana River bed, is the largest solid concrete bridge in the world. It is nearly one thousand feet long, sixty feet high, and contains 30,000 tons of concrete, and 14,000 barrels of cement. Piers extend fifty feet to bed rock. During the winter and spring rains the Santa Ana is at times a raging torrent; usually it is nearly dry.

Ontario

The City That Charms

ONTARIO is one of the most beautiful of the several towns in the orange district. Nestling amidst the orange groves at the foot of the snow-capped Sierra Madres, it presents a picture of scenic charm. Delightful drives may be taken through Euclid Avenue and other beautiful boulevards and the surrounding country. A visit to the Chamber of Commerce and the great orange packing houses will be interesting, also an electric car ride to San Antonio Heights at the head of Euclid Avenue.

Population 7000.

Orange Groves

THROUGH the heart of the great orange district runs the line of the Salt Lake Route. Thousands of acres in the San Bernardino, Pomona and San Gabriel Valleys are covered with these orange trees, yielding their wealth of golden fruit, annually worth many millions of dollars. This district is especially beautiful during the winter season when the oranges are ripening and contrasting strikingly with the towering snow-covered mountains which guard the valleys.

Pomona

The Inland City Beautiful

METROPOLIS of the fruitful Pomona Valley and appropriately named for the goddess of fruits and flowers, the beautiful homes, gardens and palm lined streets of Pomona are delightful to behold. Many of these are situated in the midst of orange groves. Pomona's parks are noted for their beauty, principal among them being Ganesha Park, which crowns a commanding hill north of the city. While in Pomona visit the Board of Trade and see the fruit display.
Population 16,000.

Pasadena

"Crown of the Valley"

BEAUTIFUL is Pasadena, with its broad, tree-bordered avenues and palatial homes, surrounded by spacious lawns, shrubbery and flowers. Oak Knoll, Orange Grove Avenue, Grand Avenue and other residence sections are noted for their beauty. Illustrating the floral possibilities in mid-winter is the annual Tournament of Roses on New Year's Day, with its parade of flower-decorated vehicles and floats, football contests, etc. Pasadena is nine miles from Los Angeles and is reached by the Salt Lake Route and electric lines.
Population 45,000.

Parks of
Los Angeles

PROMINENT among the many attractions of Los Angeles are its beautiful parks, each possessing distinctive features. Flowers in profusion, shrubbery and trees in infinite variety are attractive to the visitor. Eastlake and Westlake Parks, Elysian and Exposition Parks, South Park and Central Square, in the business center, are especially attractive. Near Eastlake Park is the Selig Wild Animal Garden and the Alligator Farm. Griffith Park, 3000 acres in extent, in the hills north of the city, is wonderfully picturesque and attractive in its natural woods and wildness.

More About
Los Angeles

BROAD, beautiful streets, lined with graceful trees of many varieties, afford delightful drives through the charming resident districts. Verdant lawns, with a profusion of flowers, shrubbery and trees, adorn the spacious grounds surrounding the handsome homes. Los Angeles' population is now more than 550,000, it being the largest city west of St. Louis. Population increase is rapid and constant. Splendid business buildings abound throughout a large district.

Long Beach

A CHARMING seaside city of 40,000 population, twenty-one miles south of Los Angeles and reached by the Salt Lake Route and Electric Line. One of the most important commercial cities of California. Among its many attractions are the finest bathing beach along the coast, a mammoth bathing pavilion, and the great pleasure pier. A most attractive resort, both winter and summer. Sea bathing may be enjoyed nearly every day throughout the year. The palatial Hotel Virginia and a large number of smaller hotels afford entertainment for visitors.

Los Angeles
San Pedro Harbor

SAN PEDRO, six miles beyond Long Beach and now a part of Greater Los Angeles, is the Pacific Coast terminus of the Salt Lake Route. The harbor is always a scene of busy industry, with ships from the world's ports loading or discharging cargo. The outer harbor, nearly enclosed by the government breakwater, affords perfect shelter from the greatest storms. From the Salt Lake Route dock, steamers sail for Catalina Island, and the Yale and Harvard for San Francisco and San Diego.

Avalon and Catalina Island

ONE of the most delightful of California's year 'round attractions. A pleasant ocean voyage of two hours, often including views of whales and flying fish, covers the trip from Los Angeles Harbor. The wonderful submarine gardens, seen through glass bottomed boats, fishing, golfing, boating, bathing, shell gathering, etc., afford recreation and pleasure. The Salt Lake Route is the only line through Long Beach to Catalina Island, and daily excursions from Los Angeles give passengers first choice of steamer accommodations.

Santa Ana

The City of Resources

SANTA ANA, the metropolis and capital of Orange County, lies thirty-three miles southeast of Los Angeles, midway between the mountains and the sea. The city has a population of about 14,000 and is one of the most important of the smaller cities of Southern California. The many beautiful mountain and beach resorts of Orange County are quickly and pleasantly reached from Santa Ana by automobile, train and trolley, yet its climate is so tempered by the ocean breezes and so uniformly delightful that its residents find no occasion to go elsewhere, to experience the joys of living in perfect comfort.

Scenic Glories of Nevada

BETWEEN Caliente and Las Vegas, Nevada, the Salt Lake Route traverses the Meadow Valley Wash, included in which is a series of canyons, whose rugged rocky walls are marvelously beautiful in their rainbow coloring. Opposite is a view at Carson's Ranch in Rainbow Canyon.
